PROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE. SARATOGA, July 28 .- The weather here is tantalizing. Mornings open brightly with not a cloud in the sky, but in a short time the light is obscured, the clouds gather and the rain is falling briskly. Today up to 9 o'clock no brighter, fairer morning could be imagined. Before 10 the heavens were gloony and threatening, and by 11 the rain was coming down. It was unfortunate for the races that the showers were not delayed, for they lægan just at the time when people were leaving the hotels for the course. It was the sixth regular day, the fields were strong, and excellent sport was expected. The rain ceased at neon, though the sky did not clear, and the grand stand quickly filled, the attendance being large. It was a fine day for favorites and an excellent day for G. L. Lorillard's stable, which won three out of the four contests, every one in which it had an entry. Sir Hagh was much too fast for the rest in the opening dash of three-quarters nile. Memento captured the Spinaway Stakes from a field of nine containing some highly-prized youngsters. brook filly in the mud, though she carried the highest weight. The third race was a handleap, so-called, but really a gift to G. L. Lorillard, for with his Ferida weighted at 110 pounds against such a lot as was entered, it might as well have been a walk-over for Ferida. There is a singular partiality for Mr. Lorillard in the handicapping here, why, it is hard to understand. He wins stakes enough out getting presents of handleaps. In the last race Farley, who rode John Harper, acted as if he had been bribed. Connor, the rider of Knight Templar, lost the race by bad riding, Governor Hampton winning after a the time slow.

$300, with special weight conditions. Starters-G. L. Lorillard's gelding Sir Hugh (3 years, 97 pounds), Applegate & Brother's horse Gabriel (5, 119); Spell-man's geiding Victim (5, 111), Pierre Lorillard's filly Pappoose (4, 105), R. H. Owen's filly Valleria (3, 90), son's filly Bonnie Lizzie (3, 90), and Charles Reed's filly Scandal (2, 67). Rob Roy, Brambaletta, Marthon, Blue Lodge and Ascender were entered for this race but were withdrawn. Betting in the nuction pools-Sir Hugh $650, Gabriel $125, Pappoose onnie Lizzie $100, Victim $90, Valleria $65, candal $25. Betting in the books—3 to 5 against Sir Hugh, 5 to 1 against Victim, 6 to 1 against Gabriei, 6 to 1 against Pappoose, 10 to 1 against Bonnie Lizzie, 12 to 1 against Valleria, and 20 to 1 against Scandai. Gabriel was fractious, and it was hard to force him to join the thers. He spoiled several starts and wearied the spectators. M. Donahue was suspended for three days for disobedience of orders. He was riding Valleria. The start was a failure when it came, Pappoose and Victim getting the best of it, and Bonnie Lizzie not being in motion when the dag feil. Pappoose took the lead, with Victim second, Gabriel third, Sir Hugh fourth. Pappoose remained in front up to the furiong post in the homestretch, though Shauer, her jockey, was not doing anything to help her. point. Sir Hugh, coming up fast on the outside, won without any difficulty by two lengths. Victim second, a length before Gabriel third, Pappoose fourth, two lengths hind Gabriel, Shauer pulling her up, Bonnie Lizzie fifth, Valleria sixth, and Scandal last. It was a strag gling and uninteresting run throughout. Bonnie Lizzle, who was left at the post, made up much of the lost ground and might Lézie, who was left at the post, made up much of the lost ground and might perhaps have got a place with a fair start, as she showed speed both in the breakaway's and the homestretch. But Sir Hugh was much superior to any other in the race. Time, 1:1812. Muthal pools, $10.

Second race—Spinaway Stakes, for two-year-old fillies, $100 cntrance, half 'orfeit, but only $25 if declared out on or before July I, with $500 added; the second to receive $200 out of the stakes and the third to save her stake; to carry 100 pounds each; whiners of any sweepstakes race of the value of $1,000 to carry three pounds extra; winners of two or more such races to carry seven pounds ex ra; madens allowed five pounds; distance, five furlongs; forty-nine nominations and ten starters, making the total value of stakes and added money bout $2,650. Starters—G. L. Lorillard's Memento (107 pounds), by Virgil out of Ulrica, ridden by Costello, and the same owner's Glance (95), by John Morgan out of Effie Cheatham, ridden by Connor; John Reber's Nellie Peyton (95), by Hurrah out of Emily Peyton, ridden by Gibbs; George W. Bowen & Co.'s Belle of Runnemede (103), ridden by Mores, and the same owner's Bayadere (103), ridden by Murs, and out of Effic Cheatham, 195), by the fil-Used out of Oitipa, ridden by Shauer; Chorles Reed's Nighteap (100), by Hurrah out of Grey Nun, ridden by Brophy; L. Grinstead's Son's Bonheur (95), by Bonnie Souland out of Blondin, ridden by Fisher; and James A. Grinstead's Square Dance (95), by War Dance out of Sue Dougherty, ridden by Henderson. Betting in the pools—G. L. Lorillard's entries $255, Bowen's entries $280 Olivia $199 field $140. Betting in the books—i to 5 against G. L. Lorillard's entries $255, Bowen's entries $280 Olivia $199 field $140. Betting in the books—i to 5 against G. L. Lorillard's entries $250. Betting in the pools Nighteap fourth, Giance fifth. Nellie Peyton was quickly passed by Memento, and Tuscaioosa ran up to second place, Olivia taking the third position. In that order they ran from the half-mile post to the homestretch, where Memento took such a lead that no other could ret near her. She ran in the mud as if she liked it better than a dry track, and won by half a dozen lengths in 1:06. Nighteap made a good run in the last quarter and finished second, two lengths before Tuscaioosa, Giance fourth, Nellie Peyton fifth, Bonheur sixth, Olivia seventh, Square Dance eighth, Eelle of Eunnemede ninth and Bayadere last. It was painfully evident to their backers that neither Belle of Eunnemede, Bayadere nor Olivia was of the least account in the mud. That Memento could give so much weight to the others and win so easily shows of what poor stuff most of them are made. Mutual pool tickets, Third race—Free handicap sweepstakes of $20 each, right $600 added, $100 to the scond and $50 to the third; listance, one mile and five furlongs. Starters—G. L. cerilhards mare Ferida. In the meantime fighting was going on, and flushy General Warren admits that he "got anxious" and reported to General Sheridan. Had he been earnest and anxious for the success of the operations he would have found the commanding General when he first arrived to let him know he was there in person. The evidence of General Chamberlair, of Griffin's Division, shows that General Sheridan was anxious to see General warren, as he asked where he first arrived to let him know he was there in person. The evidence of General Chamberlair, of divisions had not come down into a position to be of use of the fifth Corps to cooperate by a flank.

(Warren) was, and he did not understand why Warren's divisions had not come down into a position to be of use at an early hour.

The failure of the Fifth Corps to cooperate by a flank and rear movement on the night of March 31, and the escape of the enemy to the White Oak read out of the reach of a flank and rear attack by this corps on the morning of April 1, insde a new plan necessary. Finding the enemy were disposad to stand fast in their works at Five Forks, Sheridan was able to determine upon a movement by the Fifth Corps as daring as it was successful; but it required unusual energy, enthusiasm and repidity of movement on the part of those cubled to ere sate it. At this juncture General Warren's lack of appreciation of or capacity for the emergency became manifest to his commanding general. He did obey any positive order, but he apparently had no faith in their successful execution, or of that of the plan of the battle. It took him three and a half hours to move and get into position 13,000 men. General Ayres has testified that it could have been done in two hours! By this delay General Sheridan was forced to fight the battle inside of an hour and a half, as the sun went down at 6:21. General Sheridan's quick determination to dight at Five Forks that afternoon, and the interposition of the Fifth Corps between the rebel works fiere and the main line of works of the Claiborne road was a too rapid conception in its generalization for the formality of General Warren's of the Claiborne road was a too rapid conception in its generalization for the formality of General Warren's unind."

Major Gardner then quoted from the testimony of some of General Warren's people to show that the march in question was very slow, and said: "No satisfactory expianation appears to be given for the delay of the divisions of the Fifth Corps' marches up to Gravelly Run Charch." In considering General Warren's manner Major Gardner quoted from many witnesses, and said that his entire conduct during that action was that of a man uncertain as to what he ought to do, and the fact that so many different persons should at the same time have had their attention attracted to his manner was highly significant. "One of the most singular circumstances," continued Major Gardner, "of the case of the applicant is the effort he has made to put the responsibility for the dispersion of his divisions upon General Sheridan himself. It bears the impress of the handiwork and atterthought of the learned counsel for the applicant rather than of the soldier on the field."

Major Gardner then dwelt at length upon the responsibility for the confusion in General Ayres'? division General Sheridan himself raihed the men, riding in front of them with his beadquarters' flag, waving his hat and cheering them on General Warren rendered no assistance then, although it was rather the duty of the corps commander than of the army commander. The evidence of General Warren's strict orders, and he could not be held responsible by the army commander with with either orps commander was on the field supervising the movements. Major Gardner characterized as extraordinary the applicant's claim that Crawford's division linally, led by commander was on the fleid supervising the movements. Major Gardner characterized as extraordinary the applicant's claim that Crawford's division finally, led by himself, drove the enemy out of its works at Five Forks proper, and practically won the victory. Had he shown, said Major Gardner, the same degree of temerity at the critical assault on the "return" of the chemy's works, General Sheridan might not have been constrained to remove him. The assault was made by the cavalry and Avroa's infantry.

recting on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Waverley-place is rapidly approaching completion.

The building, which is of pressed brick, stands on a lot belonging to the A. T. Stewart estate, and has a frontage of ninety feet. The lobby, which is sixty feet wide and thirty feet deep, is unusually commodious. The floor will be laid with tiles, and the walls and ceiling will be decorated elaborately. Broad iron stairways on each side lead to the balcony and gallery. Fifteen hundred people can be accommodated with seats in the honse. There are three proseculum boxes on each side, two below and one at the level of the balcony, with a heavy carved wooden canopy overhead. The lower proseculum box on the left is reserved for the use of Mrs. A. T. Stewart. Fan-like decorations in old gold and peacock green and light blue in a combination of the Egyptian and Moresque styles appear on the ceiling. There will be no upholstering on the railings of the boxes or balcony, which will be of light-colored woodwork. The general tone of the decorations will be lighter than at the Madison Square Theatre, without being so bright and pronounced as to lessen the effect of the stage setting. The chairs will be like those at the Madison Square Theatre, but covered with light cloth.

The stage is thirty-five feet deep, thirty-two feet wine, and the proseculum arch is twenty-eight feet in height. Behind the stage is an unusually large scene-room for the stage of scenes not in immediate use. The property-room and dressing-rooms are to the right of the scene-room in the rear. While the theatre is intended to be fireproot, there are four different exits below, and two from the balcony. Over the stage are two large windows, which can be rearlily opened from below and will permit the free escape of snoke in case of fire in the files without its drifting out in front and alarming the antisence, ventilation has been carefully attended so in two large shafts running on each side of the parquet and extending up.

RUN OVER BY THE CARS.

James Clark, fifteen years old, was riding on a freight train of the Hadson River Railroad near Inwood last evening and accidentally fell to the ground. A freight-car passed over his legs, injuring him so badly that it was believed he could not live. His home was at No. 263 West Thirty-second-st.

IN TROUBLE THROUGH BAD ASSOCIATES.

IN TROUBLE THROUGH BAD ASSOCIATES.

Three young men, having in their pessession a horse, wagon and harness worth at least $600, which they were trying to sell at Bull's Head for $140, or anything they could get, aroused the suspicion of the police and they were arrested Wednesday. They gave their names as Theodore Taylor and David Ryder, of Garnersville, N. Y., and William Eachem, of No, 149 Seventh-ave. Taylor said the horse belonged to him, and stated that his father was the superintendent of Garner's Mills, at Garnersville. The police doubted this story, and as Ryder had been arrested last April for horse stealing, and Eachem's picture was in the Rogue's Gallery, decided to lock the prisoners up. They telegraphed to Garnersville to Mr. Taylor, who appeared, accompanied by his wife, at the Yorkville Police Court yesterday morning, when the three prisoners were arraigned. Mr. Taylor identified Theo ore as his son, and told Justice Wandell that the horse had been given him when a colt. The prisoners were discharged. The police think that Taylor was induced to try and sell the horse by his companions, who would probably have swindled him out of the proceeds of the sale.

BICYCLES AT LAW.

E. L. Parris, the referee in the bicycle controversy, gave an ther hearing in his office yesterday morning. The witnesses all teatified to instances within their own knowledge when horses had taken fright at bicycles, and had either run away or become difficult to manage, Henry Bertholf, keeper of a hotel at One-hundred-and-sixteenth-st. and Seventh-ave., Sanford L. Sayre, of No. 102 West Forty-eighth-st., a dealer in horses, and Charles Cudip, who keeps a livery stable at No. 856 Seventh-ave., were the witnesses produced by Assistant Corporation Counsel Townsend, Mr. Thompson, who was present to represent the manufacturers, protested against the protraction of the reference unless some evidence of a new character was to be addated. Mr. Townsend replied that he wished to accumulate enough testimony of particular instances to prove the general rule that bicycles are sources of danger to the drivers of horses. The case promises to be an all-summer drag.

STEALING MONEY TO KILL INDIANS. STEALING MONEY TO KILL INDIANS.

Meyer Jacoby and William Dietz, two boys fifteen years old, conceived the idea of going West and slaughtering Indians, but one obstacle presented itself, and that was a lack of money. This was overcome Wednesday by Dietz, whose family lives at No. 76 East Fourth-st., who stole his sister's jewel-case, his father's insurance policies and two bank books, one representing $934 deposited in the Dry Dock Savings Bank and the other showing an account of $600 in the Bowery Savings Bank. The boys, after disposing of Miss Dietz's jewels, were on their way to the Grand Central Depot, when Policeman Delaney arrested them on Fourth-ave. In Jacoby's possession were found the policies, bank books and also a forged check, purporting to be signed by Mr Dietz. The boys were arraigned in Yorkville Police Court yesterday morning and committed to await the arrival of Mr. Dietz, who is a cornet player, filling an engagement at Newport.

ST. JOHN'S GUILD'S SEASIDE HOME.

The officers of St. John's Guild have for some time felt the need of a quiet hospital by the seaside, where they might send sick children for whom the free excursions, which are given to hundreds of mothers and children every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, were too brief a benefit to restore them to health. Yesterday the society formally opened such a hospital at Cedar Grove, Staten Island. It will be called the Seaside Nursery of St. John's Guild. The building is a cheerful-looking, wooden structure, two stories high, with piazzas along the entire front co both stories. Special pains have been taken to secure good ventilation, and the roof has been raised in the centre the entire length of the building for this purpose. The main building is 25 feet by 60 feet, and there will be two wings each 25 feet by 60 feet, and there will be two wings each 25 feet by 60 feet, and there will be two wings each 25 feet by 60 feet, and there will be two wings each 25 feet by 60 feet, and there will be two wings each 25 feet by 60 feet, and there will be two wings each 25 feet by 60 feet, one of these is almost completed.

The Nursery is situated on Prince's Bay, below the Narrows, and commands an unobstructed view out to sea. A fine shelving beach directly in front will give the children a chance to splash in the water without danger. Back of the building is a cedar grove. The grounds of the society comprise ten acres, with a frontage of 600 feet on the bay. The doctors abourd the barge, or floating hospital of the Guild, will send on each trip such children to the nersery as they think need its benefits, and these can stay there under the care of competent doctors and nurses until cured. For this purpose wards have been fitted up with cots for the children, as well as beds for the sick mothers; and there are also a doctor's room, a matron's room, a dining room and bath rooms. At present there are accommodations for fifty children with mothers, but when the other wing is completed there will

KILLING HERSELF TO AVOID WORK.

The body of a girl of fifteen was found in the East River yesterday by the mate of a schooner anchored at the foot of East Fourth st. It was identified as that of Regina Lenschnez, who had been missing from her home at No. 507 Sixth-st, since Tuesday night, and the discovery raised the strong suspicion—almost certainty—that the girl had taken her own life. This her father stated as his belief to Caroner Knox who became in proceedings to Charles. saspicion—amoss certainty—that the girl had taken her own life. This her father stated as his belief to Coroner Knox, who began an investigation. Charles Lenschnetz keeps a grocery store at No. 507 Sixthst. Regina was the oldest of his five children, and when her mother recently lay upon a sick-bed, she was required to do much of the work about the house, a duty which she disliked very much. The g rl was inclined to be flighty, and her father had forbidden her to go out at night with certain of her companiens, whose influence upon her he feared. She complained bitierly of this and of her mother's refusal to hire help in order that she might be at leisure in the evening.

At 90 clock Tuesday night she was sent out with a pitcher to get same beer. She made her way toward the river and informed one of her sisters, whom she met in the street, that she would not fetch the beer, but was going to drown herself. The threat when reported to her father was held by him to be an idle one; but when his child had not returned the fiext morning he began an anxious search which ended only when her body was found in the river yesterday.

Policeman Philip F. The accordeon-player, James Walters, refused to stop playing, whereupon Mahoney attempted to arrest him. The gang set upon him and took his club away. He struggled with the men, and was finally comp-lled to draw his revolver. The crowd then dispersed. Subsequently Detective Pierce and Mahoney arrested Walters and James Devine, an ex-convict, twenty-two years of age, who took the club from Mahoney. ARRESTED BY MISTAKE.

Captain William Smith, an employe in the War Department, was arrested in the Pennsylvania Railroad Depot at Jersey City yesterday afternoon, as he was about to take a train for Washington, in company with a woman, and taken to Poloce Head quarters, where he was charged with being a forcer. The arrest was made by Policemen Hutton and Van Buskirk at the request of Detective Cooper, of the Pinkerton Bureau, who had a photograph of the alleged forger. Cooper was in search of a man named Smith, who had passed a forged check for $765 on the First National Bank of Richmond.
